DETAILED ACTION

Specification

The disclosure is objected to because of the following informalities:

It is suggested that in:

Page 5, line 25, after "...eccentric..." inset --pin--.

Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Objections

Claim 10 is objected to because of the following informalities:

Claim 10 does not state the claim it is dependent from.

Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 6, 7, 9, 12, and 13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by U.S. Patent No. 3,236,125 to Lundgren.

Lundgren discloses a cutting-tool assembly (see fig. 2) comprising: a rotatable tool holder (31) formed with an outwardly open seat (39) having an outwardly directed floor (see fig. 2); a cartridge (29) engaged in the seat, carrying a cutting insert (32), and formed with an inwardly open groove (44) defining a groove axis and having a surface confronting and extending at a small acute angle to the seat floor (see figs. 2, 9). An adjustment wedge (37) axially shiftable in the groove (see figs. 2, 9), having a formation (54) extending transversely of the axis, and bearing radially outward on the groove surface and radially inward on the seat floor (see figs. 2, 5), whereby axial shifting of the adjustment wedge radially shifts the cartridge in the groove (see fig. 2). Means including an eccentric pin (50) set in the cartridge and engaging the formation of the adjustment wedge for axially shifting the adjustment wedge in the groove and thereby radially displacing the cartridge in the seat on rotation of the pin (see figs. 2, 5). The cartridge is formed with a radially extending bore (51) opening into the seat and in which the pin is seated and rotatable (see figs. 2, 5). The formation is a transverse groove in the adjustment wedge (see fig. 5) and the eccentric pin has a cylindrical end extension (53) engaged in the transverse groove (see fig. 5). The seat floor is flat (see fig. 2) and the wedge has a flat face (39b) riding on the seat floor (see fig. 2). A retaining body (36) and means for pressing the retaining body against the cartridge and thereby locking the cartridge against displacement in the seat (defined by the screw threads engaged with the threaded hole).

Art Unit: 3722

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 10 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Lundgren.

Lundgren discloses the claimed invention except for the angle being between 8° and 12°. However, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide the cutting-tool assembly of Lundgren with the angle being between 8° and 12°, since it has been held that where the general conditions of a claim are disclosed in the prior art, discovering the optimum or workable ranges involves only routine skill in the art. In re Aller, 105 USPQ 233.

Claim 11 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Lundgren.

Lundgren discloses the claimed invention except for the groove surface being generally cylindrical. However, it would have been an obvious matter of design choice to make the groove surface of whatever form or shape was desired or expedient. A change in form or shape is generally recognized as being within the level of ordinary skill in the art, absent any showing of unexpected results. In re Dailey et al., 149 USPQ 47.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 6-14 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Art Unit: 3722

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 8 and 14 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
